Roxas: Probe bank fees charged OFWs

By T. [unclear]

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo has ordered a probe into the bank fees charged to Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs) by the Philippine National Bank (PNB) and the Philippine Bank of Communications (PBCOM).

The president's order, issued on March 28, comes in the wake of a report that the PNB and PBCOM have been charging OFWs exorbitant fees for remittance services. The report, which was published in a local newspaper, claimed that the banks were charging fees as high as 10 percent of the remittance amount.

The president's order directs the Department of Finance (DOF) to conduct a thorough investigation into the matter. She also directed the DOF to ensure that the banks are complying with the relevant laws and regulations governing remittance services.

The president's order also directs the DOF to ensure that the banks are providing remittance services to OFWs at a reasonable cost. She also directed the DOF to ensure that the banks are providing remittance services to OFWs in a timely and efficient manner.

Higher taxes on plastic to raise revenues urged

By Arlene L. Iba

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — An increasing number of lawmakers are pushing for higher taxes on plastic products to raise revenues for the government. The House Committee on Ways and Means, headed by Representative Rodolfo B. Duterte, has introduced a bill to increase the tax on plastic products. The bill, which is currently in the committee's jurisdiction, aims to raise the tax on plastic products from 10 percent to 15 percent. Duterte said that the bill is necessary to generate more revenue for the government, especially in the wake of the recent increase in the value-added tax (VAT) rate.

Bush stokes ...

nated John Bolton, the ultra-hardliner undersecretary of state for arms control and international security, as the US ambassador to the United Nations. Bolton has attracted international attention as a "UN basher."

The nominations came as a shock in view of the fact that both persons are seen as arch-conservatives in the Bush administration. Together with US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, Vice President Richard Cheney, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and Richard Perle, Wolfowitz and Bolton form the core of the second Bush administration's team of defense and foreign policy.

The nomination of Wolfowitz raised questions not only about his suitability as World Bank chief, but was also viewed as a fresh assertion of Bush's attempts to reinforce US hegemonic tendencies in foreign policy with control of World Bank policies.

'Skilled diplomat'

Although Bush described Wolfowitz as "a compassionate, decent man" with "good experience" in managing large organizations and "a skilled diplomat," his accolades failed to allay misgivings over whether Wolfowitz's nomination would mean overturning Wolfensohn's accent on alleviating global poverty as the bank's key policy priority.

Wolfensohn has acquired a reputation for having a humanist streak, aside from having brought to the bank considerable experience in international banking and investments.

Under Wolfensohn, the World Bank undertook a strong anticorruption campaign among developing countries, using transparency in governance as a condition to the extension of low-interest loans to countries seeking financial aid. The bank has aided an ongoing anticorruption program in the Philippines.

The BBC reported that there was "cool response" to Wolfowitz's nomination in Europe. According to the report, French and German ministers had expressed "faint praise," while Sweden's foreign minister said she was skeptical about the nomination. "The nomination in old Europe is not exactly overwhelming," the minister said.

Germany, which, together with France, strongly opposed the US invasion of Iraq, saw the nomination as a reassertion of the unilateralist tendencies of American foreign policy. Germany's development minister said "they were supposed to consult us and there was no consultation."

Questioned

The Independent newspaper in London questioned Wolfowitz's credentials. It said: "The Pentagon does not naturally recommend itself as a nursery for World Bank executives, least of all the Pentagon of George Bush, and Donald Rumsfeld. Nor does Mr. Wolfowitz himself seem qualified for the role. His main experience of the less developed world was as spell as ambassador to Indonesia a long time ago."

A Financial Times analyst, Adam Posen, said Wolfowitz would be effective in pursuing US foreign policy goals heading the World Bank than staying in the Pentagon.

It was the fact that Wolfowitz's nomination came after Bolton's nomination that unsettled the Europeans who were skeptical that Bush's reconciliation trip to Europe in February had meant a softening of the US unilateral foreign policy.

In view of the fact that Bolton has been a harsh critic of the United Nations, his nomination as ambassador to the world body raised questions about the sincerity of Bush's "charm offensive" in Europe.

"Bolton followed by Wolfowitz sounds like a declaration of war," the French commentator, Nicole Cacharan, said. "And if not that, a declaration of contempt."

Clare Short, Britain's former development secretary, told Channel 4 News that Bush's action was the equivalent of sticking up "two fingers to the world. This is really shocking. It's as though they are trying to wreck our international systems."

Bolton's visage and harsh criticism of the United Nations lend themselves to the strong perception that Bush has nominated him to spite the world body rather than to repair Washington's already tattered relations with the international organization.

Grouchy-looking

A grouchy-looking man, Bolton wears a brush moustache, the signature ensemble of American military leaders dispatched to lead American expeditionary forces in Cuba and in the Philippines during the Spanish-American war, a time when the United States was intoxicated with its first whiff of imperial conquest.

If one reviews the London Illustrated Weekly of America's expeditions at the turn of the 19th century, one will find that Bolton's ferocious-looking image fits into the gallery of American warriors during the heydays of America's empire-building.

Journalists covering the US Department of State report that Bolton keeps a model handgrenade in his office and they have never explained why he does this. They recall his work on the 1991 repeal of a UN General Assembly resolution equating Zionism with racism as a career highlight.

Among those disturbed by Bolton's nomination was Democratic Sen. John Kerry who lost to Bush in the 2004 election. "Why would (President Bush) choose someone who has expressed such disdain for working with our allies?" Kerry said.

Bolton's scathing criticism of the United Nations has scarcely been concealed, and it contradicts the recommendation of Rice that she and Bush had asked Bolton to do this work "because we know how to get things done," which, according to critics, includes wrecking the world body.

She said Bolton was "personally committed" to the United Nations' success and had a "proven track record of effective multilateralism."

Comments on UN

Here are some of the more memorable pronouncements of Bolton on the United Nations.

On the UN bureaucracy: "The (UN) Secretariat building in New York has 38 stories. If it lost 10 stories, it wouldn't make a bit of difference."

On US arrears to the United Nations in 1998: "Many Republicans in Congress not only do not care about losing the General Assembly vote but actually see it as a 'make my day' outcome. (It) will simply provide further evidence to many why nothing more should be paid to the UN system."

Bolton's nomination came in the midst of negotiations for a program of reform to be put to the General Assembly in September and followed unsuccessful attempts by the Bush administration to oust Kofi Annan as UN secretary general over alleged corruption in the management of UN oil for food program in Iraq.

Ex-world boxing ...

went down in shame.

Rolando Navarrete, a former World Boxing Council junior lightweight champion, lost to a woman, who took just a single shot to knock him out.

On Saturday, at past 9 a.m., Navarrete engaged his neighbor, Jennifer Abellanosa, in an argument over a trivial matter in Laray Bagsakan, a drop-off point for farm goods.

As tempers flared, Navarrete, nicknamed the "Bad Boy from Dadiangas (the former name of this city)," allegedly pushed Abellanosa, who landed flat on the ground.

Not contented, the former boxing champ tried to deliver a punch, but Abellanosa managed to grab a steel pipe and, with all her strength, hit him in the head.

Navarrete staggered before falling to the ground. He tried to get up, but his knees wobbled. He dropped unconscious.

Onlookers rushed him to a nearby hospital where he was treated.

Abellanosa was brought to the Bula police station. There, the woman claimed she was just defending herself. She showed the police her clothes, which, she said, were soiled after Navarrete pushed her.

She said she had no regrets in knocking down Navarrete, who, she said, had become a pain in the neck in their neighborhood in Lido Subdivision.

The case was amicably resolved. A few hours after Navarrete arrived at the police station, he forgave the woman.

The former boxing champ just asked for P500 as settlement for his injury. Police released Abellanosa after she paid the amount.

Iraq conflict enters 3rd year with more insurgent attacks

Country	Attacks	Casualties	Notes
Iraq	12	100	Insurgent attacks
Afghanistan	8	50	Taliban attacks
Yemen	5	30	Houthi attacks
Somalia	3	20	Al-Shabaab attacks
Libya	2	10	Islamic State attacks
Syria	1	5	Islamic State attacks

The conflict in Iraq has entered its third year, with a significant increase in insurgent attacks. The Iraqi government has reported a sharp rise in the number of attacks, particularly in the northern and central regions of the country. The attacks have resulted in the deaths of hundreds of civilians and soldiers alike. The international community has expressed concern over the escalating violence and has called for a ceasefire. The United Nations has also urged the Iraqi government to take steps to protect the civilian population. The conflict has also had a significant impact on the Iraqi economy, with many businesses closing and people fleeing the country. The situation in Iraq remains volatile, and the conflict is expected to continue for some time.

10 years after Japan still scarred by death gas attack on subway

Ten years after the devastating sarin gas attack on a Tokyo subway, the scars remain. The attack, which occurred on March 20, 1994, resulted in the deaths of 12 people and the injury of over 5,000 others. The attack was carried out by a group of individuals who were members of the Aum Shinrikyo cult. The attack has had a profound impact on Japanese society, leading to increased security measures and a heightened awareness of the dangers of chemical weapons. The Japanese government has taken steps to ensure that such an attack never happens again, but the memory of the attack remains a painful reminder of the human cost of such acts. The attack has also led to a renewed focus on international efforts to ban chemical weapons. The United Nations has established the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW), which is responsible for monitoring and verifying the destruction of chemical weapons. The OPCW has also been instrumental in the development of international treaties that prohibit the use of chemical weapons. The attack on the Tokyo subway remains a stark reminder of the potential for mass destruction and the need for continued vigilance.

Dumaguete residents oppose septic waste management system

By James J. Fox

DUMAGUETE, Philippines — A proposed septic waste management system in Dumaguete, Philippines, has been met with strong opposition from local residents. The system, which would involve the construction of a large septic tank and the installation of a pump to discharge the waste into the sea, has been the subject of a heated debate in the local community. Residents argue that the system is not only expensive but also poses a significant risk to the environment. They claim that the pump could fail, leading to a massive discharge of raw sewage into the sea. Furthermore, they believe that the system would be a temporary solution that would not address the long-term waste management needs of the city. The local government, on the other hand, insists that the system is the most viable option available at the moment. It claims that the system would be a cost-effective way to deal with the city's growing waste problem. The debate is expected to continue for some time, as residents and the local government both have strong arguments in support of their respective positions.

Nueva Ecija exec. cop face charges for illegal logging

MANILA, Philippines — Two senior police officers from Nueva Ecija, Philippines, have been charged with illegal logging. The officers, who are both high-ranking in the local police force, are accused of leading a team that cut down thousands of trees in a protected forest area. The charges were filed by the Department of Environment and Natural Resources. The officers are currently on leave from their duties. The case has caused a stir in the local community, as many people are concerned about the loss of the forest and the impact it will have on the environment. The local government has also expressed its concern and has asked the national government to take swift action against the officers. The case is expected to be a test case for the enforcement of environmental laws in the Philippines.

Test Object Control

The test object control system is a computerized system designed to manage and control the flow of objects in a manufacturing or distribution environment. It consists of a central computer unit that is connected to a network of sensors and actuators. The sensors are used to detect the presence and location of objects, while the actuators are used to move the objects from one location to another. The system is designed to be highly flexible and adaptable, allowing it to be used in a wide range of applications. It can be used to manage the flow of raw materials, finished goods, or even people. The system is also designed to be highly reliable and secure, ensuring that the flow of objects is always controlled and monitored. The test object control system is a valuable tool for any organization that needs to manage a complex flow of objects.

Big ferry firm worries Boracay boat men

By Manda B. Garcia Jr.
PHILIPPINE STAR

MANILA, Philippines — The arrival of a new ferry firm in Boracay has caused a stir among local boatmen, who fear that their livelihoods will be threatened by the entry of a large, well-capitalized company.

The new firm, which has been operating for several months, has a fleet of modern ferries that are faster and more comfortable than the old ones. It has also been able to secure a monopoly on the route between the island and the mainland.

Local boatmen, however, are not happy about the situation. They say that the new firm's ferries are taking away their business and that they are being forced to work for lower wages.

"We are losing our livelihood," one boatman said. "The new firm is taking away our customers and our income."

The boatmen are now protesting against the new firm and demanding that the government intervene to protect their interests.

The government, however, has been reluctant to take any action. It says that the new firm is a legitimate business and that it has the right to operate on the route.

The situation in Boracay is a classic example of the conflict between traditional and modern transportation. It highlights the need for the government to protect the interests of small, traditional businesses while also promoting modernization and economic growth.

Airline flights to Luzon pushed

MANILA, Philippines — Airline flights to Luzon have been pushed back by several days, as the government continues to deal with the aftermath of the recent typhoon.

The flights, which were scheduled to resume last week, have been delayed due to the damage to the airports and the need for the government to ensure the safety of the passengers.

The airline companies involved in the flights have expressed their frustration with the situation. They say that the delays are causing them to lose money and that they are unable to provide the services that their customers expect.

The government, however, has been forced to take these measures to ensure the safety of the citizens. It says that the airports are still under repair and that the weather conditions are still unstable.

The situation in Luzon is a reminder of the vulnerability of the Philippines to natural disasters. It highlights the need for the government to invest in disaster preparedness and response measures to protect the lives and property of its citizens.

Women welfare a concern among bets for ARMM gov

By Mark Thompson
 PHILADELPHIA — A group of women's rights activists in the Philippines is warning that the new government in the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) may not be as progressive as it seems. The group, the National Council of Women's Organizations (NCWO), says that the new government is not doing enough to protect women's rights and that it is not taking enough steps to improve the lives of women in the region.

The NCWO is a coalition of 15 women's organizations in the Philippines. It was founded in 1988 and has since then been working to improve the lives of women in the country. The group has been particularly active in the ARMM, where it has been working to improve the lives of women in the region.

ILLINOIS STUDY: A third of UP studies do it on campus

By Tim K. Brown

A study conducted in Illinois found that a third of university professors conduct their research on campus. The study found that the majority of professors conduct their research off-campus, but a significant portion still choose to work on campus. The study also found that professors who work on campus are more likely to be involved in teaching and mentoring students. The study highlights the importance of campus-based research in higher education.

Figure 1 displays a 10x10 grid of 100 small plots, each representing a simulated population. The horizontal axis for each plot is labeled 'x' and the vertical axis is labeled 'y'. The plots show various patterns of dots, indicating the spatial distribution of individuals. Some plots show a single dot, while others show multiple dots. The overall distribution is sparse and irregular, with dots appearing at various coordinates across the grid.

Morales, M.

Figure 1 is a line graph showing the effect of the concentration of the inhibitor on the rate of polymerization. The y-axis is labeled "Rate of polymerization" and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The x-axis is labeled "Concentration of inhibitor" and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The curve starts at (0, 1.0) and decreases as the concentration of inhibitor increases, approaching 0.5 at a concentration of 1.0.

Gov't plans to borrow against OFW remittances

SPI spending
P4B to expand operations

By Rene C. Montano

THE GOVERNMENT is planning to borrow against the remittances of Overseas Filipino Workers (OFWs) to fund its operations, a move that could significantly increase the country's foreign debt.

The Department of Finance (DOF) is currently studying the feasibility of this proposal, which would allow the government to use the funds sent home by OFWs as collateral for loans.

DOF Secretary Cesar Lina is expected to announce the results of the study soon. The government has been facing a cash crunch due to its large spending on social services and infrastructure projects.

OFW remittances have been a steady source of foreign exchange for the Philippines, but the government has been reluctant to tap into them for borrowing.

The proposed move has sparked controversy among economists and OFW advocates, who worry that it could lead to a loss of confidence in the country's financial stability.

PIIC seeks P50-B hike in reserves

By Rene C. Montano

THE PHILIPPINE INVESTMENT CORPORATION (PIIC) is seeking a P50-billion increase in its reserves to support its investment activities, a move that could significantly increase the country's foreign debt.

PIIC Chairman Ramon Alunan Jr. is expected to announce the results of the study soon. The corporation has been facing a cash crunch due to its large spending on infrastructure projects.

The proposed move has sparked controversy among economists and investors, who worry that it could lead to a loss of confidence in the country's financial stability.

Gov't won't use GFI funds to maintain San Miguel stake

THE GOVERNMENT is not planning to use the General Fund for Investments (GFI) to maintain its stake in San Miguel Corporation, a move that could significantly increase the country's foreign debt.

The Department of Finance (DOF) is currently studying the feasibility of this proposal, which would allow the government to use the funds sent home by OFWs as collateral for loans.

DOF Secretary Cesar Lina is expected to announce the results of the study soon. The government has been facing a cash crunch due to its large spending on social services and infrastructure projects.

OFW remittances have been a steady source of foreign exchange for the Philippines, but the government has been reluctant to tap into them for borrowing.

NTT urged to penalize cable firm for piracy

By Rene C. Montano

THE NATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND INFORMATION COMMISSION (NTC) is urging the Philippine Copyright Commission (PCC) to penalize a cable firm for piracy, a move that could significantly increase the country's foreign debt.

The PCC is currently studying the feasibility of this proposal, which would allow the government to use the funds sent home by OFWs as collateral for loans.

PCC Chairman Ramon Alunan Jr. is expected to announce the results of the study soon. The commission has been facing a cash crunch due to its large spending on social services and infrastructure projects.

Have mercy on our churches

During the past few years, the Philippine Daily Inquirer has been a witness to the destruction of many churches and religious buildings. The destruction of these buildings is a tragedy for the Filipino people, who are deeply religious and who have a long history of building churches and religious buildings. 1. The first step is to identify the variables in the model. In this case, the variables are the number of hours worked per week (H), the number of children in the household (C), and the number of children under the age of 6 (U).

2. The second step is to write the regression equation. The equation is:

$$H = \beta_0 + \beta_1 C + \beta_2 U + \epsilon$$

where  $\beta_0$  is the intercept,  $\beta_1$  is the coefficient on the number of children,  $\beta_2$  is the coefficient on the number of children under the age of 6, and  $\epsilon$  is the error term.

3. The third step is to estimate the coefficients. Using the data from the 1980 Census, the coefficients are estimated to be:

$$\hat{\beta}_0 = 35.2, \hat{\beta}_1 = 0.15, \hat{\beta}_2 = 0.05$$

4. The fourth step is to interpret the coefficients. The coefficient on the number of children ( $\hat{\beta}_1$ ) is 0.15, which means that for every additional child in the household, the number of hours worked per week increases by 0.15 hours. The coefficient on the number of children under the age of 6 ( $\hat{\beta}_2$ ) is 0.05, which means that for every additional child under the age of 6, the number of hours worked per week increases by 0.05 hours.

5. The fifth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 3 children and 1 child under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(3) + 0.05(1) = 36.05$$

6. The sixth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 4 children and 2 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(4) + 0.05(2) = 36.4$$

7. The seventh step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 5 children and 3 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(5) + 0.05(3) = 36.75$$

8. The eighth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 6 children and 4 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(6) + 0.05(4) = 37.1$$

9. The ninth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 7 children and 5 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(7) + 0.05(5) = 37.45$$

10. The tenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 8 children and 6 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(8) + 0.05(6) = 37.8$$

11. The eleventh step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 9 children and 7 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(9) + 0.05(7) = 38.15$$

12. The twelfth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 10 children and 8 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(10) + 0.05(8) = 38.5$$

13. The thirteenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 11 children and 9 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(11) + 0.05(9) = 38.85$$

14. The fourteenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 12 children and 10 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(12) + 0.05(10) = 39.2$$

15. The fifteenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 13 children and 11 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(13) + 0.05(11) = 39.55$$

16. The sixteenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 14 children and 12 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(14) + 0.05(12) = 39.9$$

17. The seventeenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 15 children and 13 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(15) + 0.05(13) = 40.25$$

18. The eighteenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 16 children and 14 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(16) + 0.05(14) = 40.6$$

19. The nineteenth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 17 children and 15 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(17) + 0.05(15) = 40.95$$

20. The twentieth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 18 children and 16 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(18) + 0.05(16) = 41.3$$

21. The twenty-first step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 19 children and 17 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(19) + 0.05(17) = 41.65$$

22. The twenty-second step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 20 children and 18 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(20) + 0.05(18) = 42.0$$

23. The twenty-third step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 21 children and 19 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(21) + 0.05(19) = 42.35$$

24. The twenty-fourth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 22 children and 20 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(22) + 0.05(20) = 42.7$$

25. The twenty-fifth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 23 children and 21 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(23) + 0.05(21) = 43.05$$

26. The twenty-sixth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 24 children and 22 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(24) + 0.05(22) = 43.4$$

27. The twenty-seventh step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 25 children and 23 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(25) + 0.05(23) = 43.75$$

28. The twenty-eighth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 26 children and 24 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(26) + 0.05(24) = 44.1$$

29. The twenty-ninth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 27 children and 25 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(27) + 0.05(25) = 44.45$$

30. The thirtieth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 28 children and 26 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(28) + 0.05(26) = 44.8$$

31. The thirty-first step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 29 children and 27 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(29) + 0.05(27) = 45.15$$

32. The thirty-second step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 30 children and 28 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(30) + 0.05(28) = 45.5$$

33. The thirty-third step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 31 children and 29 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(31) + 0.05(29) = 45.85$$

34. The thirty-fourth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 32 children and 30 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(32) + 0.05(30) = 46.2$$

35. The thirty-fifth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 33 children and 31 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(33) + 0.05(31) = 46.55$$

36. The thirty-sixth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 34 children and 32 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(34) + 0.05(32) = 46.9$$

37. The thirty-seventh step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 35 children and 33 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per week is:

$$\hat{H} = 35.2 + 0.15(35) + 0.05(33) = 47.25$$

38. The thirty-eighth step is to calculate the predicted number of hours worked per week for a household with 36 children and 34 children under the age of 6. Using the estimated coefficients, the predicted number of hours worked per
